

Computer Vision

Computer vision enables computers to interpret information from images and videos. Common tasks include image classification, object detection, image segmentation, and face recognition. Convolutional neural networks have traditionally been important for extracting spatial features from images. Computer vision systems can be trained using labeled image datasets and evaluated using metrics such as accuracy, precision, recall, and mean average precision.