

Deep Learning

Deep learning is a subset of machine learning based on neural networks with multiple layers. A neural network contains interconnected neurons that transform input data through learned weights and biases. Activation functions such as ReLU introduce non-linearity into the model. Deep learning is widely used for image recognition, speech processing, natural language processing, and other complex pattern-recognition tasks. Training commonly uses backpropagation and gradient-based optimization.